

Digital Project Manager

c£40,000

London SE1 Base

Our Client provides bespoke technical marketing solutions, designed with the entertainment industry in mind. Their team of media professionals will work with clients to understand their needs so that they can advise, design and deliver the perfect package to enhance their marketing strategy, offering a measurable ROI and helping them interact with their customers.

An experienced professional, probably a graduate, with great communication skills and ideally experience of using Magento and Wordpress content management systems and Lamp stack web solutions, the Digital Project Manager will ensure on-time and on-budget delivery across a range of digital and web-based projects.

Your responsibilities will include:

- Project management of the initiation, specification, design, development, and delivery of digital development projects.
- Developing technical and functional specifications.
- Improving internal development practices and establishing industry best practices.
- Prioritising and re-allocating work to ensure client satisfaction.
- Engaging external resources and managing outsourcing.
- Managing all website hosting and support contract related matters.
- Responsibility for the entire development lifecycle.
- Managing development team's schedules and timetables.
- Managing client relationships harmoniously and effectively.

The role will be client-facing from the latter stages of the sales process for website and application development projects up to and including final hand-over. You will work closely with Account Management and Business Development staff throughout the business development process, proactively engaging with the client as necessary to secure business.
